DEATH OF A GENERAL.

Joseph E. Johnson Passes Away In Washington.

HIS LAST HOURS WERE PAINLESS.

A Cold Taken at the Funeral of His One-Time foe, General Sherman, Proves Fatal to the Famous Confederate Leader.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.
WASHINGTON, March 23.—Gen. Joseph E. Johnston died shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night at his residence on Connecticut avenue. The general had been suffering for the last three weeks with an affection of the heart, aggravated by a cold he caught soon after Gen. Sherman's funeral in New York. His physician had been trying to keep his strength up for some days, but his advanced age gave little hope for his recovery from the beginning of his illness.

Funeral services over the remains of Gen. Johnston will be held at St. John's Episcopal church Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. The interment will be in Green Mount cemetery, Baltimore. The honorary pallbearers will be Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama; Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia; J. L. M. Curry, Gen. John G. Parker, U. S. A.; Gen. Charles W. Field, Gen. Harry Heth, rear admiral C. R. P. Rodgers, rear admiral W. G. Temple, Gen. H. G. Wright, Gen. Benjamin W. Hickey, Col. Archer Anderson, of Baltimore; Col. Edwin G. Harris, J. C. Bancroft Davis and pay director James W. Wadsworth of the navy. The active pallbearers will be taken from members of the ex-Confederate association of this city.

Gen. Johnston was the last save Gen. Beauregard of the six full generals of the confederacy. He was born at Cherry Grove, Va., in 1807, and was graduated from West Point in 1829 in the same class with Gen. Robert E. Lee. He was appointed second lieutenant of the Fourth artillery, and saw first active service in the field in 1832 in the Black Hawk Indian expedition. He was promoted in 1836 and was an aide de camp on Gen. Winfield Scott's staff in the Seminole war. He participated in all the important battles connected with Gen. Scott's campaign in Mexico from the taking of Vera Cruz to the capture of the City of Mexico. He was twice brevetted for gallantry during this war, and in 1848 was mustered out of the service as a lieutenant-colonel of volunteers, only to be reinstated by congress with his original rank of captain of topographical engineers. He was commissioned quartermaster-general of the United States army in June, 1850, but resigned the position April to enter the confederate service, in which as a major-general of volunteers he assisted Gen. Lee in the work of organizing the men who were pouring into Richmond. Subsequently he was commissioned brigadier-general in the confederate service and was placed in command of Harper's Ferry, having joined forces with Beauregard and remained in command of the consolidated troops until 1862. At the battle of Seven Pines he was wounded and incapacitated for about six months. His next service was as commander of the army of the Tennessee, and he employed the winter of 1862 to reorganizing his command, which had become demoralized by the defeat of Missionary Ridge. He was relieved of this command in July, 1864, by order of the authorities at Richmond. Gen. Hood succeeded him. Early in 1865 Gen. Lee again assigned him to the command from which he had been relieved and ordered him to drive back Sherman. Gen. Johnston urged Lee to abandon Richmond, join forces with him, and fight Sherman before Grant could come up. Lee replied that it was impossible for him to leave Virginia, as his force was small. Gen. Johnston, declining a decisive engagement, hung on Sherman's flanks, following the latter and impeding his march from Atlanta toward Richmond as much as possible. Lee surrendered at Appomattox and Johnston, obtaining the consent of president Jefferson Davis that the war should not be further prolonged, entered into negotiations with Sherman by the federal government and April 26 a second agreement was concluded. Gen. Johnston after the war became successively president of a railroad company in Arkansas, of an express company in Virginia and an insurance agent in Georgia. He was elected to congress from the Richmond district in 1871 and next saw public life as commissioner of railroads, which office he held under President Cleveland's administration. He was a man of medium height, and with a kindly, pleasant face. He was unobtrusive in manner and invariably courteous to all persons with whom he was brought in contact.

THE WESTS' WANTS.

To Be Discussed at the Coming Gathering in Kansas City Preparation for the Holding of the Western States' Commercial Congress—Its Object.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—Preparations for holding the western states' commercial congress April 14 to April 18 in this city have been about completed. The railways will give reduced rates and arrangements have been completed for the entertainment of about 1,000 guests. The idea of holding such a congress originated in the Kansas legislature, and invitations to other states were authorized by a concurrent resolution. The original idea was to have the congress composed of the eighteen great agricultural states of the Mississippi valley, but at the solicitation of Mississippi and Alabama these two states were authorized to send delegates.

The legislatures of nine states appointed delegates and the governors of the others are expected to send representatives. Invitations to be present and address the convention have been accepted by Senators Stewart and Ingalls, Congressmen Mills and Dockery and Messrs. Warner of Ohio, and Donnelly of Minnesota. Invitations have been sent to President Harrison, ex-presidents Hayes and Cleveland, Henry Watterson, the governors of the states to be represented and many other prominent men.

The object of the congress is to consider the needs of the west, and some of the topics for consideration will be: General business and agricultural depression, and remedy; legislation as affecting commerce, transportation and finance; transportation and improvement of waterways, gulf and Pacific ports; free coinage, metallic money and paper currency; uniform commercial laws; cause and effects of business combinations and trusts; reciprocity and international trade extension.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.

Demand Made by the Gathering at Lansing—Independent Political Action.

LANSING, Mich., March 23.—The supreme association of Patrons of Industry adjourned Saturday, leaving the date and place of the next annual meeting to be fixed by the executive board. The resolutions passed just before adjournment demand the adoption of such a system of collecting funds for the support of the government as will furnish the people means of ascertaining how their taxes have been contributed to such support; government loans to the people on real estate; the Australian ballot system; equal taxation and legislation to check the advance of corporations and monopolies upon the rights and prosperity of the laboring and producing classes. Another resolution asserts that it is the duty of the agriculturists in all parts of North America to stand together for the maintenance of the home and farm in opposition to the encroachments of socialism on the one hand and monopoly on the other. The report of the committee on cooperation, which was adopted, declares that the history of the past teaches us that longer cooperation with the two old parties will only retard the reasonable demands of out kindred fraternal organizations.

The case will go to the supreme court, as it is the first ever tried under the law.

THE POWER OF LOVE.

It Ends The McCoy-Hayfield Border Warfare.

OLD ENEMIES BURY THE HATCHET.

After Years of Bitter Warfare the Marriage of Members of the Hatfield and McCoy Families Is Followed by Peace.

MANY LIVES HAD BEEN TAKEN.
WHEELING, W. Va., March 23.—The Hatfield-McCoy feud and the consequent warfare between the residents of Logan county, W. Va., and Pike county, Ky., is at an end. This feud has been in existence since 1873 over a sow, and has been kept up relentlessly since. The feud has been the cause of no less than 100 deaths among the participants, and men have grown from childhood with revenge instilled in them. The following letter tells its own story:

"To the Editor of the Wayne News: I ask space in your paper for a few lines. A general amnesty has been declared in the famous Hatfield-McCoy feud and I wish to say something of the old and the new. I do not wish to keep the old feud alive, and I suppose like myself the public is tired of the names 'Hatfield and McCoy,' and the words 'border warfare in times of peace.' The war spirit in me has abated and I sincerely rejoice at the prospects of peace. I have devoted my life to arms. We have undergone a fearful struggle. We being like Adam, not the first transgressors, now I propose to rest in a spirit of peace. Yours respectfully,

"CAPT. ANNE HATFIELD,
Logan county, W. Va."

This letter from "Devil Anse" Hatfield, of Mountain View, disturbance as far as his side is concerned, and it is said a like letter has been published in Kentucky. This state of affairs is the result of the marriage of one of the Hatfields to a Miss McCoy and a truce and peace congress held shortly after.

PRISONED IN A TANK

Boy Smothered in W. B. Stoddard's Oil Wagon

DEATH BARELY AVERTED

Climbing Through a Manhole to Clean Out the Oil Chamber, Little Fred Smith Is Overcome by Gas—A Rescue And an Explosion.

There was an exciting scene and a hair's breath escape from death at W. B. Stoddard's, 205 North Bluff street Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Stoddard is the agent of the Standard Oil Company, and is provided with an iron tank wagon for use in delivering oil to the local consumers. Saturday a leak was discovered in the tank. The wagon was backed under a shed located between Mr. Stoddard's barn and tin shop, on Bluff street. The oil was drawn from the tank, and the man-hole cover taken off.

Mr. Stoddard attempted to get inside the tank but found the man-hole too small. A small boy—Fred Smith—next tried, but even he had to put his arms close together about his head and slide down head foremost to enter the oil chamber. He had with him rags wet with gasoline to wipe the oil from the sheathing that the leak might be located.

After helping the boy into the tank, Mr. Stoddard went into the barn on some errand, leaving young Smith to wipe out the tank, not thinking that danger would come.

A few moments later Mr. Stoddard passed by the man-hole, and not hearing any noise looked in. There lay Smith flat face down on the bottom. Stoddard spoke to him but received no answer. He reached in and took hold of the boy's leg, only to find it stiff. Realizing at once the situation Mr. Stoddard called for help, and went to work to rescue the boy.

Everything had to be done from the outside on account of the small opening. The first thing attempted was to turn the boy around. This was finally done, and one arm was pulled out of the man-hole, but the other, stiff and rigid, was caught inside. Back the body was shoved into the tank, and the tightened arm released. Again the arms were pulled out, but this time the head had become bent over and caught under the edge of the tank. This was released and the young man's head was brought out to the fresh air.

Everything indicated that the boy was dead. The body was tenderly taken from the tank and laid upon the ground. A moment after there was a gasp for breath. Restoratives were applied, and after much hard work life was restored.

Investigations were set on foot to discover the cause of suffocation. Realizing that there must be gas in the tank, but not thinking of its dangerous nature, Mr. Stoddard opened up the tank, struck a match and poked it into the man-hole. His burned whiskers, eye-brows and hair clearly indicate the result.

There was a burst of flame from the manhole and a moment later the straw in the loft overhead was crackling.

The men who had gathered around at this time realized that quick work was necessary, grabbed the straw at the risk of seriously burning themselves, and quickly smothered the flame. This promptness undoubtedly saved a serious blaze as a strong wind was blowing at the time, and the location was one in which a fire once under way would be difficult to check or extinguish.

"I never dreamed the thing would explode in that way," said Mr. Stoddard in relating the incident to a friend. "It was all a chance I went back to the tank as I did and found young Smith. A moment longer and we would have had a funeral on our hands sure. Then to see the blue flame go up when I struck the match! I tell you what, it was a mighty narrow escape from death and fire. Next time the tank leaks I will leave it out in the yard, or out on the prairie. I will take no more chances. When I put my face up to the man-hole to see what was the matter with Smith, I thought I could smell something, but I had no idea there was gas in it. It didn't smell at all like the gas house gas, and probably there is where it fooled me. As long as the boy got out all right, though, I can stand having my whiskers, eye-brows and hair burned off without any complaint."

SHE'S DOWN ON DECOLLETTE.
Verona Jarbeau Talks of Tights and Stage Dress.

Verona Jarbeau took a newspaper man into her confidence the other day and discoursed interestingly upon tights. "I don't suppose I shall ever again wear 'fall' tights—that's what we call out-and-out tights, you know—though I've made some of my best hits in them. When a woman once gets in the way of wearing tights she can't help looking to keep on acting in them. You can't imagine the glorious exhilaration of being in tights, with no shirt to get in one's way or occupy one's mind. But there's one thing I won't do or allow any woman in my company to do, and that's, appear in tights and a decollette bodice at the same time. Tights are bad enough, perhaps, but a low neck costume is positively shocking."

WHAT IS THE REASON?

From the Ladies' Home Journal.
I told Ezekiah to tell Widow Gray to tell Mother Brown, not to do that. To tell Dicky Dwight, who goes that way, to tell Deacon Barnes, at the store. To tell the old stage driver, Amosy Bean. To come for me sure, and in season. But I've waited all day, and no stage have I seen.
Now what do you think is the reason?

TWO BOARDERS ROBBED.

Charles Ferris and H. Vroman Suffer a Loss of Forty Dollars.

Thieves stole clothing and money to the amount of forty dollars from Charles Ferris and H. Vroman, at their boarding place on Peace Court, Saturday evening. Vroman lost twenty-eight dollars in cash and a promissory note, while Ferris lost fourteen dollars.

Ferris and Vroman had rooms in the second story of Mr. Randolph's home on Peace Court. The outside door opens into a hallway, at the end of which are the stairs that lead to Ferris and Vroman's rooms, and there a person could enter their room without passing through the home. Ferris is employed as janitor at the Court Street church and Vroman is attending Valentine's school. They went home Saturday night about 9:30 o'clock and found the trunks had been opened and the money taken. Mr. Randolph states that he heard some one go up stairs about 8 o'clock, but thought it was one of his boarders returning and did not look to see who it was.

The loss falls heavily on Ferris although the amount taken was not as large as Vroman lost. He is a hard working young man and has been saving his money to send for his wife and child in Ohio. He came to Janesville with the intention of learning telegraphy but afterward sought employment and decided to send for his wife.

Officers have no clue but think that the thief was some person who was familiar with the house and knew where Vroman and Ferris kept their money.

BRIEF CHIPS OF LOCAL.

Odd Fellows Hard at Work.
Rock River Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., is now one of the strongest and most active lodges of Patriarchal Old Fellows in the state. This lodge has been full of work all winter and now has eight candidates ready for the Royal Purple degree. At the last meeting a number of visitors were present from Whitewater and Evansville, all being greatly pleased at the work as exemplified by the members of Number Three. There will be a large attendance at the next meeting, many visitors from other encampments being expected.

An Unfortunate Accident.
Directly under the announcement of Albert Lightfoot's funeral in the Gazette Saturday night appeared a line which had no connection with that item and which properly formed a part of a Beloit dispatch. The transposition was due to an accident in making up the paper and was not detected until the entire edition was on the street. No one can regret more deeply than do the editors a mishap which tended to bring additional grief to a family stricken thus, sorely by the untimely visit of death.

Mrs. Moore Very Low.
Mrs. Helen Moore is very sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Agnes Clark, corner of North Bluff street and Prospect avenue. Mrs. Moore is eighty-one years of age and little hopes of her recovery are entertained. Her seven children are with her. They are Mrs. M. L. May and Mrs. Barlow, Emerald Grove, Robert Moore, of Bradford, William Moore and Mrs. Waters, of Webster, South Dakota, and Mrs. Mary Wallace, of Huntsville, Ohio.

Birthday of the G. A. R.
April 6 is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic. Pledges to orders received from the national headquarters. E. B. Heimstreet has called a meeting of the post for this evening to appoint committees to arrange for the celebration of the anniversary.

Started by Wild Geese.
The president of the Anglemore club, awakened with a start this morning. A flock of wild geese passed over his house, and their cries were more musical to him than the melodious sound of Walter Helms' saxophone.

With a Shining Front.
E. J. Kent & Company are converting the faded blue front of their West Milwaukee street store to a brilliant black. When the black dries, gold striping will be put on.

Another to Welcome Him Home.
A handsome baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McLean Saturday night. A telegram was sent to the happy father in California informing him of the event.

Bridge Bids Opened To-Night.
Bids for building the north pier for the Monterey bridge will be opened by the common council this evening.

Enjoyed City Scenes.
W. A. Hendley, O. O. Greene, and F. E. Smith, three of Beloit's four hundred spent Sunday in Janesville.

The Frostrating Shocks.
O'leular fever are not to be counteracted by quinine with any degree of certainty or for any length of time. The eradication and prevention of diseases of malarial type are, however, accessible possibilities. Long experience has shown that there is infinitely more preventive efficacy in the fine botanic medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, than in the elaborate drugs and poisons which were formerly the only recognized means of removing and subduing attacks of fever and ague and bilious remittent. When the system has been depleted by periodic recurring paroxysms, this agreeable restorative renews the fund of energy, and is not only a positive specific but repairs the damage to the general health inflicted by all febrile complaints partaking of the malarial character.

Grange Meeting.
The Rock County Pomona Grange, will hold a special meeting at Janesville Grange hall, April 1, at 10 a. m. It is hoped that as many will attend as can with convenience. The afternoon will be open to all who wish to come. There are several interesting subjects to come before the meeting, and it bids fair to be one of interest.

SUITS FOR SOLDIERS

Janesville Militia to Have New Uniforms

THE ORDERS ARE PLACED

Fatigue Suits Will Be Issued to All the Guardsmen in the State by July 1—Campaign Caps and Leggings Also To Be Provided.

The Janesville Light Infantry will soon wear new fatigue uniforms. Local militia officers have been informed by Adjutant General Doe that Wisconsin's military credit with the general government the coming year will amount to $10,253.32, and that amount, coupled with the clothing fund allowed by the state, will equip the entire national guard of the state with fatigue uniforms consisting of blouse, trousers, and cap, and in addition, with campaign caps and leggings. After this is furnished the Wisconsin National Guard will be in excellent condition.

The Pettibone Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnati, will secure the contract, and the uniforms will be strictly in accordance with the specifications and regulations furnished by the quartermaster general of the United States army. The clothing, on its arrival, will be inspected by a duly qualified officer, who will be detailed, and will only be accepted and paid for if the suits bear the inspection mark of the quartermaster general's department. Each uniform must be sent to measure and a fit guaranteed in every instance. The Janesville soldier boys have been promised their uniforms on time for the annual encampment. There is also a strong sentiment in favor of new dress uniforms, but as these must be paid for by the company, it is not likely anything will be done for some time.

MILLER IN NO DANGER.

Talk of Lynching Came Only From a Few Irresponsible Citizens.

A special dispatch from Beloit to the Milwaukee papers confirms the Gazette's statement that Lynch law was talked in the Miller case. The dispatch reads:

Bellevue, Wis., March 21.—Much indignation has been expressed here over the light sentence imposed on Geo. Miller, the tramp arrested for an assault upon a three-year-old girl, and threats of lynching are freely indulged in. He was hustled off to jail in a hurry to do his six months.

Reports from Beloit this afternoon indicate that much of the talk of lynching was from a few light-headed ones who are prompt to judge and jury in all such cases. Officers say that Miller is in no particular danger.
